Tenure-Track Position 2022-2023

Department of Spanish and Latin American Studies

The Hebrew University of Jerusalem invites applications for a tenure-track position (open rank) in the Department of Spanish and Latin American Studies, with a specialization in Spanish and Latin American Literature (preference for Medieval and Golden Age Spanish literature) or History of Latin America (preference for the Colonial Period). The position is open to all candidates who have attained a Ph.D. degree, and to advanced doctoral students who expect to be granted their Ph.D. no later than June 30, 2023.

We encourage applications from scholars with a strong interdisciplinary orientation and with a demonstrated ability to engage with other sub-disciplines. Responsibilities include graduate and undergraduate teaching and advising, independent and original research (including applying for research grants), and departmental service.

Job requirements:

Responsibilities include the teaching of required and elective courses in the candidate's field(s) of specialization (at the B.A. and M.A. degree levels). Successful candidates are expected to conduct independent and original research at the highest academic level, demonstrate academic leadership, compete for Israeli and international research grants, and should display an ability to work cooperatively with colleagues in the Faculty of Humanities and the University at large. Where pertinent, and in accordance with inter-departmental needs, a joint departmental appointment or joint teaching arrangement may be considered.

The Hebrew University's primary language of instruction is Hebrew. However, the possibility of teaching one or more advanced courses in English and/or Spanish may be entertained. Candidates whose Hebrew proficiency is such that they would not be comfortable teaching in Hebrew will be encouraged to sufficiently master the language during the initial years following their appointment. Full proficiency in Spanish and/or Portuguese is required.

Qualified candidates will be invited for a campus visit, which will include a job talk, an interview, and meetings with department members.

For further details, please contact the Head of the Department, Prof. Ruth Fine at: ruth.fine@mail.huji.ac.il
